Dear We Care Family,

After such an extraordinary year, it's hard not to attach a lot of meaning to the transition to a new one. Whether it's hope for a fresh start or assessing the impact of the past 10 months – it seems like New Year's this year is particularly symbolic.

We may have experienced daunting challenges and loss in 2020, but we've also learned much. We Care has kept working the entire time; innovating treatment delivery, ensuring every child we work with got the best help available, and putting in place the changes that will ensure we can keep delivering on our commitment to this community for a long, long time.

And like in any catastrophe, there were so many examples of people stepping up. We saw the resilience and brave perseverance of the families we serve, the creativity, adaptability, and skill of the We Care staff, and the compassion and generosity of folks like you who've supported us and other safety-net organizations throughout these remarkable times.

We know there's much to reflect on – and be grateful for – and we want to thank you from the bottom of our hearts for your support of young children and your commitment to working to make things better. We want to thank you for every time you helped a neighbor with your kindness or philanthropy this year as they dealt with struggles greater than your own.

Thank you for that, and we wish you a very, very happy New Year.
